Sands has gone on directly to New York, which was to be the ultimate destination of the Puritan, as she is under orders to try the new dry dock there at the earliest opportunity.

BE VACANT SEATS AT FIGHT.

Big Disappointment Is in Store for Dan Stuart.

Carson, Nev., March 15.—There is every reason to believe that Dan Stuart is doomed to suffer another disappointment when the receipts of the box office are counted next Wednesday afternoon. Stuart has been peculiarly unfortunate in his effort to bring about pugilistic encounters of renown. He lost a fortune at Dallas, another at Hot Springs, still another at Langtry and it now looks as if all his patience and money would be swept away in the contests of the coming week. A fortnight ago it was said that scores of people were coming from every large eastern city and that the Pacific coast alone would contribute 5,000 visitors. Telegrams received show that the special trains now hurrying to Carson City are carrying but few persons to the ringside. It is not believed that more than a thousand men are on the way, and if there are 3,000 patrons of the ring on the day of the fight the representation will be a surprise to many people.

HARD FIGHT WITH A NEGRO.

Two Dead and One Wounded in the Affair at Birmingham, Ala.

Birmingham, Ala., March 15.—While trying to arrest William Hunter, a negro accused of burglary, Patrolman Perdue fired several shots at him. One bullet killed Myrtis Boland, 5 years old, the daughter of a widow, who was playing in an alley two blocks off. Hunter also was shot, and, to try to avoid being captured alive, he jumped into a well containing ten feet of water. Before jumping he shot away Perdue's jaw, and he attempted to kill another officer who was getting him out of the well.

A general fight among the negroes and whites took place while Hunter was being sent to the jail, and several men were bruised. Hunter died at the jail. Perdue is dangerously wounded.

Usual Turkish Denial Made.

Washington, March 15.—The Turkish legation has given out the following: "There has been published a telegram dated Constantinople, the 12th instant, saying that fresh atrocities are threatened in Asia Minor; that Christians there are in a deplorable condition and asserting that the situation in Payas is extremely critical, and bloodshed has occurred at Everek. The Turkish minister is authorized by his government to officially declare these reports to be absolutely false and unfounded."

Crushed by Falling Walls.

Steubenville, Ohio, March 15.—A whirlwind visited the town of Mingo Junction Saturday night. ## T.B. REED IS CHOSEN AS THE SPEAKER

MAN FROM MAINE IS AGAIN HONORED.

Will Preside Over the Lower House—President McKinley's Message Will Be Presented to Congress Late This Afternoon—News of the Capital City.

Washington, March 15.—"Speaker Reed" it has been, and "Speaker Reed" it will be.

The man from Maine was reelected as the presiding officer of the house this morning.

The vote stood Reed 199, Bailey 114, Bell 21 and Newlands 1.

Washington, March 15.—President

THOMAS BRACKETT REED.

McKinley's message will be presented to congress late this afternoon.

Washington, March 15.—The LVth congress met in extraordinary session to-day at noon in pursuance of President McKinley's proclamation. The work before it—the passage of a tariff bill—is pretty well out in advance, but the indications are that it will be a stormy session. So far as the house is concerned, the present determination of the leaders is to work hard and throw the responsibility for delays on the senate.

It seems likely that the speaker will, at least for the present, appoint only the committees necessary for the business in hand. This will prove an effective bar to the passage of miscellaneous or general bills.

The appropriations bills, which failed to receive Mr. Cleveland's approval, are to be put through at the extraordinary session without consideration in committee.

The new tariff bill, upon which republican members of the ways and means committee have been working for three months, is complete, and will be introduced at once. The house leaders hope to enter upon the consideration of the bill in the house before the end of the week. Some of them fixed Thursday as the day on which the debate would probably begin. Although the limits of the debate have not yet been decided upon, the prevailing opinion is that it will not last over ten days. The bill may be sent to the senate a week from next Saturday.

There are 206 republican members, 122 democrats and 29 fusion silver and populist representatives. The percentage of new members is unusually large. There are 148 new men. Of these 132 have never served in congress before.

Vice-President Hobart rapped the senate to order at noon to-day. The week does not now promise to be a busy one, unless the arbitration treaty is considered. Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, said that he would force the question of ratification to a speedy termination. The friends of the treaty assert that there will not be to exceed twenty opposing votes when the final result is announced.

Considerable time during the week will be spent by the committees of the various parties in the senate in an effort to reach a harmonious adjustment of the senate committees. There is now talk of an agreement to fill all the vacancies except those existing in the committees of finance and appropriations.

LONG MEETING AT NIGHT.

Ways and Means Committee Has Held Its Final Session.

Washington, March 15.—The final work upon the tariff bill occupied the time of the Republican members of the ways and means committee Sunday and at night they assembled for their last conference. As soon as the committee's draft of the bill has been completed it will be sent to the government printing office and a force of picked men will be put to work upon it there, so that it may be presented to the house at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

It is possible that changes may be made in some of the most important schedules even at this late hour, particularly the wool schedule, over which there are differences of opinion in the committee. The reciprocity scheme has not yet been formulated into words and some features of the plan are still subject to change. Apart from the possibility of revision tonight the important features of the bill will stand as they have been outlined from day to day.

THE NATIONS PLOT TO QUELL GREEKS

SEVERE THREAT MADE BY THE POWERS.

Must Yield to the Mandate of Europe and Withdraw From Crete—Blockade of Greek Ports Has Been Ordered to Begin Wednesday—Turkey Acquiescent.

London, March 15.—The Daily Chronicle announces that formal ultimatum has been delivered to Greece, announcing that the blockade of Crete and certain Greek ports, not yet named, will begin on Wednesday. Some of the powers have decided that unless Greece yields or if she declares war on Turkey, measures still more severe will be employed, even to the point of utterly destroying Greece as a nation.

The London Times' correspondent at St. Petersburg says the formal adhesion of Great Britain to the blockade program was imparted to Russia on Friday. The British, Russian, German and Austrian admirals have already been instructed as to a blockade of Crete and Greece.

The correspondent of the London Times at Canea says: "The official assurance of autonomy has been received at last, but in terms so vague that the insurgent chiefs place no reliance upon it, nor will they believe it possible until the Turkish garrison is replaced by European troops."

Rome, March 15.—It is officially announced here that the result of the pour-parlers of the powers Saturday is a definite agreement not to reply to the Greek note, but to issue orders to the foreign admirals to establish an immediate blockade of Cretan ports.

This agreement is somewhat in the nature of a concession to Russia and France. Russia during the middle of last week proposed—with France seconding the proposal—another joint note to Greece, insisting on the withdrawal of the troops, instead of an immediate resort by the powers to force.

It is thought that the simplest way to carry out the threat made in the identical note will be the blockading of the Cretan ports and the landing of forces sufficient to insure the maintenance of order, leaving future action as to the fate of Crete to later negotiations. This was the view of Russia at the outset.

HOPES GREECE WILL SUBMIT.

Official Announcement in the Journal of St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The official St. Petersburg Journal says: "We recently stated the reasons which determined the attitude of the imperial government as to the Cretan question. Unfortunately they do not seem adequately recognized at Athens. While consenting to recall her ships, Greece persists that the co-operation of her troops is necessary to the pacification of the island, after which a plebiscite should decide the fate of Crete."

"Such an attitude is unsatisfactory. The powers find themselves compelled, though much against their will, to have recourse to vigorous measures which they shrink from adopting in regard to Greece."

"It is hoped that Greece, seeing that the powers are firmly resolved not to shrink from any measure of coercion necessary, will give way, thus exorcising the danger with which her present attitude threatens European peace."

Turkey Is Acquiescent.

Constantinople, March 15.—The porte continues to adopt an acquiescent tone in answer to the requests of the powers. Replying to the collective note of the ambassadors of the 5th instant, the porte announces in writing its intention to concentrate the Ottoman troops in Crete in the fortified towns as soon as the Greek troops have evacuated the island. The porte has also sent an identical request to the envoys of the powers, begging them to expedite the solution of the crisis.

THE DAMAGE NEAR MEMPHIS.

The Mississippi River Continues to Rise, Although at 46.3 Feet.

Memphis, Tenn., March 15.—The Mississippi River continues to rise, and the situation in the low lands of Arkansas, opposite this city, is serious. The river stands at 46.3, a rise of seven-tenths since last night. This is the highest record since the establishment of the weather bureau here in 1872. On all of the islands near the city and in the lowlands of Arkansas there is great suffering among the people, and there is a great loss of stock and property. People continue leaving the lowlands.

At Marion, where a break in the dike occurred Friday night, a scene of desolation exists. The little town is four or five feet under water, many houses and cabins have been washed away and the inhabitants have sought shelter elsewhere. Hundreds of horses and cattle have been destroyed by the resistless waters.

ACCUSE GREEKS OF CRUELTY.

Russian Newspaper Says They Have Massacred Mussulmans.

St. Petersburg, March 15.—The Petersburg Zeitung asks whether King George can really be in earnest in talking of Greece's mission being humanity, faith, and freedom, when his representatives in Crete have massacred at least 400 Mussulmans in Sitia alone. It says they have murdered 32 women and 71 children, afterward amusing themselves by cutting off the ears and noses of little girls and wounding women and children, according to the latest dispatches.

Hunter's Success Seems Sure.

Frankfort, Ky., March 15.—The sudden death of State Senator John P. Salyers at his mountain home was announced by telegrams Sunday, and it created a profound sensation among the legislators. Salyers was a democrat and prominent in the senatorial fight last winter. His death removed nearly the last doubt that Hunter, the present republican nominee for United States senator, will be elected whenever the joint ballot is had.

Admiral Von Hollmann Quits.

Berlin, March 15.—The National Zeitung states that Admiral von Hollmann resigned the portfolio of the navy at the close of Saturday's session of the budget committee. The budget committee rejected practically all of Von Hollmann's plan for the extension of the navy. ## Transvaal Preparing for War.

London, March 15.—The Daily Mail Cape Town correspondent states that Germany has recently landed large shipments of munitions of war at Walvisch Bay, a circumstance which causes suspicion. The Transvaal is also arming steadily, the shipments of ammunition, guns and military supplies from France alone amounting to 300 tons monthly.

Criticises Tariff Bill.

London, March 15.—The Times prints nearly a page of what purports to be the new tariff schedules and, commenting editorially upon them, says: "A cursory perusal is enough to show that a long backward stride is being made in the direction of the McKinley tariff. In whatever way the matter may be settled, it will involve serious annoyance and derangement of business for British exporters, as well as a corresponding loss for Americans themselves."

Balaklava Hero Passes Away.

Phoenixville, Pa., March 15.—Barney McKernan, an aged hero of Balaklava, died Sunday night with the medals of honor won in the famous charge of the Light brigade on his breast. ## Oxford Tries a New Oar.

The Oxonians are trying an invention of Hayling's called "perforated oars" with countersunk depressions in the blade of each, about the size of a pencil. It is claimed that it gives a better hold on the water and enables a narrower blade to be used.

Fatal Shooting at Port Byron, Ill.

Rock Island, Ill., March 15.—Charles Ross shot and fatally wounded John Sullivan at Port Byron Saturday night. Sullivan had attacked Ross on the street. Ross was afterward captured.

PATRIOTS WILL WIN THE FIGHT FOR LIFE

SPAIN MUST SOON WITHDRAW FROM CUBA.

Disastrous Reverses in the Philippine Islands Have Made it Necessary to Send More Troops There—Spanish Treasury Is Empty—General Lee's Family to Return Home Soon.

Havana, March 15.—The news of Spanish reverses in the Philippines, and the repulse of Polavieja before Cavite and his resignation in front of the enemy, added, if that were possible, to the gloom and depression that prevails in official circles here.

Now it is understood why General Weyler received telegraphic instructions on the 9th inst. not to embark on the 10th.

Primo de Rivera, who was to have succeeded him in the hopeless task of subduing Cuba, is designated for the supreme command in the Philippines, and it is not known who will be sent here.

Six thousand troops that were to have sailed from Cadiz for Havana this week will be sent to Manila, and General Weyler has been asked to send as many troops as he can spare to Spain.

These are to be transhipped for the far eastern archipelago, or are to replace the regiments of the home garrison, which are destined for service in the Philippines.

It is learned on the highest military authority that these 6,000 recruits were raised by offers of bounty, as in the present state of public opinion in Spain it was not deemed safe to exercise the draft. General Weyler has stated that he can only spare 10,000 men, and these will shortly be embarked for the peninsula in the guise of invalids and men whose time has expired.

The situation here is grave and becomes more critical every day. The opinion prevails that a crisis is approaching. All garrison towns in Havana province are nightly attacked, and the insurgent success at Guines has been followed by an equally successful onslaught upon Bejucal and Guanajay.

The Spanish troops are harassed day and night, and the insurgents have evidently begun an active campaign, which was to have awaited the fall of the spring rains.

The arrears due the troops and for supplies now amount to $46,000,000, and there is not a cent of good money in the treasury for the daily expenses. The question of paper money billets still remains unsolved, and is likely to remain so.

Spaniards are now openly saying that the only hope is in negotiating with Gomez, but they know that this is impossible as long as General Weyler remains upon the island. The first time since the outbreak of the revolution the authorities here seem to see that the war may end by evacuation and withdrawal from the island.

The family of Consul General Lee will return to the United States within two weeks. This is thought to be preparatory to a change in the consularship.

Mrs. Hammond's Diary.

London, March 15.—The diary of Mrs. John Hays Hammond, wife of the American engineer who was imprisoned, sentenced to death, and finally released upon the payment of a heavy fine, as a member of the Johannesburg reform committee, is now in the hands of the printers, and is awaited with considerable interest. It is expected to clear up much that is obscure in the recent troubles in the Transvaal.

Michigan Town Flooded.

Decatur, Mich., March 15.—The village of Pigeon, in Huron county, is under water as a result of the Pigeon river overflowing its banks. ## Sylvester Scovel in Havana.

Havana, March 15.—Sylvester Scovel, the war correspondent recently released from prison at Sancti Spiritus, arrived here Sunday evening.

A JANESVILLE BOY WINS SEVENTH PRIZE

ROLLIN C. LEWIS IN SENTINEL'S STATE CONTEST.

His Paper on "The Blackhawk War" is interesting, as it presents much of historical value, and tells of the trip of the Indians through this part of the country.

Rollin Lewis, the twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Lewis, won seventh prize in the Milwaukee Sentinel's state historical contest, and will get the daily and Sunday Sentinel free for one year. The Sentinel offered the prizes for the "best written sketches of some notable or interesting event in Wisconsin history." The papers were written over an assumed name. The judges did not know who the writers were, until after the markings were made. Master Lewis wrote on "The Black Hawk War," and in speaking of his paper the judge of awards said:

"The Black Hawk War," by Rollin C. Lewis seems to be a remarkably well written paper for the production of a boy only twelve years of age. The main features of this important event are brought into good relief."

After it was known that Master Lewis had won a prize, the Sentinel wrote him to that effect, and he answered the letter as follows:

"The name of my father is Stephen B. Lewis and the name of my mother is Elizabeth C. Lewis. My teacher's name is Estelle Benn. I teach the seventh grade, third ward school, Janesville, known as the Jefferson school. I am two years of age, and live at 405 Court street. We have supplementary reading at school, and have read Hawthorne's "Wonder Book," Shakespeare's Tales, Whittier's "Snow Bound" and others. Parts of these we have committed to memory. We study geography by the tourist's method, and learn names of interest connected with the different places. I have read with mamma at home, Dickens, Child's History of England, Bonn's Child's History of Spain, Young's History of the Netherlands, and histories of the United States.

"Seeing your offer of prizes for historical sketches of Wisconsin history, I thought I would see if I could write a sketch, and chose "The Black Hawk War," because often played in the grove near my home Black Hawk camped, and have seen Fort Atkinson where General Atkinson built the fort, and know about Fort Winnebago for I was born near there."

The Black Hawk War.

Master Lewis wrote on "The Black Hawk war," as follows:

"In the closing years of Adams' administration, a most interesting event occurred in the early history of Wisconsin, known as the Black Hawk war. There were three tribes of Indians engaged in this war; the Sacs, the Foxes and the Winnebagoes. The chief of the Sacs was Black Hawk, who was then about sixty years old, and from him the war received its name. Keokuk was the chief of the Foxes, and Prophet of the Winnebagoes.

"The conflict arose from a dispute about lands. The United States had made several treaties with the Indians buying their lands east of the Mississippi river, and the Indians were to move west. When the time came for them to go, Keokuk and a greater part of the tribes crossed the 'Great Waters,' but Black Hawk and some of his followers would not leave their old home. He claimed that their village near Rock Island was not sold.

"In the spring of 1831 the Indians went west of the river on a hunt, and upon their return found their village and fields in the possession of the whites. They decided to repossess them, and crossed over to Illinois with a band of about 300 warriors. This was considered an invasion by the governor, who called upon the United States for troops. The village was destroyed by Illinois volunteers, and the United States troops threatened to cross the river and drive the Indians still farther west. This brought them to terms, and on the payment of 60,000 bushels of corn, which sold for 5 cents per bushel then, the Indians promised to remain forever west of the river.

Blackhawks Came Back.

"But Black Hawk did not keep his promise and the next spring returned with about 1,000 warriors. He crossed over into the Rock River valley, saying he only came to plant corn; but very soon his followers were on the war path. The plan of warfare adopted by the Sacs was to keep the main body concealed in strongholds and avoid general battle and send out small parties to attack lonely settlements and stragglers. These bands of Indians scattered all over the country between the Rock, Mississippi and Wisconsin rivers and caused great fear among the inhabitants, who removed to forts, stockades and block-houses for protection.

"The governor of Illinois raised some militia, and Gen. Atkinson with some regulars of the United States army joined them. Black Hawk and his followers moved up the Rock River valley, followed by their pursuers. Some militia under Gen. Whiteside burned Prophet's village and about forty miles further, near Dixon, a part of the soldiers fell into an ambush and were routed by the Indians, who killed eleven and wounded three of them. The main body of the Indians still followed the river north and are said to have camped in a grove just east of the city of Janesville, still known as Black Hawk's grove. From this point they went north to Lake Koshkonong, in which there is an island known as Black Hawk's island.

Fort Was Threatened.

"The Winnebagoes who promised to aid the Sacs told Black Hawk that Fort Winnebago, located at the portage between the Wisconsin and Fox rivers, and about two miles from the present city of Portage, was only guarded by a few men. This caused the Indians to move north and camp on the Fox river about eight miles from the fort. The soldiers did everything they could to strengthen the fort, but felt they were few to stand an attack and decided to ask help from General Atkinson.

"Satterlee Clark was chosen to be the messenger. He was then less than twenty-one years of age and quite a noted scout, and afterwards became one of the noted men of the state. He started from the fort at 9 o'clock at night armed with a rifle, a tomahawk, a bowie knife and his dispatches. All night he traveled rapidly, running down hill and on level ground, and walking up hill; being careful to avoid trails, fearing Indians might be camped on these trails and that their dogs might discover him and bark. He reached Fort Atkinson about 11 o'clock the next morning. He found the fort built of log pickets with loop holes for the guns and blockhouses on the northeast and southwest corners. About an acre of ground was enclosed. It stood on the hill where the High school of Fort Atkinson now stands. Gen. Atkinson immediately sent a large force to Fort Winnebago.

Clark's Perilous Trip.

"Mr. Clark slept until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and then started out to return. He overtook the mounted militia twelve miles out and passed them. At daybreak he crawled into some brush and went to sleep. He dared not leave his hiding place till it became dark, when he hurried on again and reached Fort Winnebago before night. He told the garrison that soldiers were on the road to their relief. Every one was on the watch, but the militia did not arrive until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It seems strange that a man on foot should travel so much faster than mounted soldiers, but the cause was the wet marshes, the wilderness of wood and underbrush, and often where scout could get across on foot, the soldiers had to build rude bridges or road ways. The soldiers were obliged to rest one day, expecting then to be able to start out after the Indians, but the night before the expected attack the horses took fright, probably at some Winnebagoes, and stampeded. About 300 horses took the trail across the prairie, and ran through swamps and marshes about thirty miles. More than sixty of them were killed, besides many lost. This caused another delay, and the soldiers did not leave the fort until the fifth day.

A Battle Raged.

"The enemy had now gone to camp near the present site of Madison, between Third and Fourth lakes. The soldiers followed, and one Indian was shot and killed near the present capitol. When the bluff of the Wisconsin were reached they found Black Hawk and his band, together with the women and children, preparing to cross the river. A battle followed which began about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and ended at sun-down. The Indians were defeated with a loss of sixty-eight killed, and a large number wounded. This is known as the battle of Wisconsin Heights. During the night the Indians made their escape down the river, the women and children in canoes, and the men marching along the shore. Their trail was soon discovered, and the soldiers pursued and came up with them near the mouth of the Bad Axe river, about forty miles above Prairie du Chien. This was on the second of August, twelve days after the battle of Wisconsin Heights. Dodge's command of militia formed the advance, supported by regular troops, under Colonel Zachary Taylor, afterwards president of the United States. A steamboat, "The Warrior," has been sent up the river, armed with a sixpounder to prevent escape across the Mississippi. Thus surrounded, the Indians became easy victims and many of the men, women and children were killed; others were captured, and some escaped. Those that crossed the river were killed by their enemy, the Sioux. Black Hawk and the Prophet ran to the top of the high bluff, and giving a loud yell of revenge, disappeared. They expected to find the Winnebagoes, living near, friendly, and so hoped to be able to escape; but the knowing Black Hawk had been defeated, the Indians would not shelter him and he finally hid in a cave in the Dells of the Wisconsin river, about two miles above where Kilbourn City now is.

Reward for Blackhawk.

"A reward of $2,000 was offered for the capture of Black Hawk and the Prophet, which was earned by two Winnebagoes, Chaeter and One-Eyed Decora, who brought them to Prairie du Chien on the 27th of August and delivered them as prisoners to the Indian agent, Gen. Street. They were sent down the river to Jefferson Barracks near St. Louis, under charge of Lieut. Jefferson Davis, afterwards the president of the confederacy. Here they were kept close prisoners until spring when they were sent to Washington.

"President Jackson had an interview with them and said that the white men would compel the red men to live in peace. Then they were taken to Fortress Monroe; but in June, 1833, the president ordered their release. They were then conducted through the principal cities, to show them the power and number of the whites, and make them realize how impossible it was to wage war successfully.

"Black Hawk died October 3, 1838, and was buried on the banks of the Mississippi river in Iowa.

"This was the last Indian war to occur on Wisconsin soil.

THE SERMONS HEARD IN LOCAL PULPITS

WHAT JANESVILLE PASTORS TOLD THEIR FLOCKS.

Dr. Halsey Spoke of the Today of Methodism, and Gave Some Interesting Figures—Rev. A. E. Hanley of Chicago, at the Baptist Church—Other Church News.

The Prelude at Court Street M. E. church yesterday morning was on the "Today of Methodism." Loyalty to an individual church, Rev. Dr. Halsey claimed, was always commendable. Methodism is well organized and thoroughly equipped. Any member of this branch of the church who is ashamed of his church relations is an object of pity. The organization is the strongest protestant church in the country today. It is governed by:

124 annual conferences.
1,855 young men are ready to enter the ministry.
12,376 pastors are in active service.
2,076 worn out pastors are on the retired list.

305,456 probationers were received last year.
2,520,238 full members are on the church rolls.
65,593 represents the increase last year.

35,000 deaths announced in 1896.
30,000 Sunday schools and 355,889 teachers and officers, with 3,000,000 children, represent the Sunday school interests of the church.
25,843 churches valued at $126,000,000 indicate the wealth of this branch of the church. These figures are independent of the church south.

The sermon was based on words of Christ from the gospels of Matthew and John and had to do with the strong loves of the human heart. Next to the love of life, the speaker said, there were three or four kinds of love that impressed him. First is the love of the world. Not in itself wrong, but many times commendable. The day dreams of youth, filled with plans for the future is natural and indicates a laudable ambition, the accumulation of a competency, and wealth if rightly used and not abused, is always desirable. The danger point should be gradual, however, so that the love of the world may not be absorbing.

Second the love of friend and social affection is a type of divine love. The helpfulness of friendship is a happy experience that is common to many lives.

Love of country, patriotism, is another type of love that is grand and frequently sublime.

The love for Christ, the highest type of human affection, is like all other pure love but greater in degree. Love and faith are natural endowments of the heart that are only supreme when turned towards God. The fruits of this love find expression in words and shine out in the life. The sermon was strong and helpful. In the evening the pastor spoke on the popular theme, "Men Are What Women Want Them to Be." The service was well attended.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. A. E. Hanley of Chicago Preaches at Both Services.

Rev. A. E. Hanley of Chicago occupied the Baptist pulpit morning and evening. His subject in the morning was "The Goodness of God," founded upon Psalm 107-8.

What is goodness? It is not physical beauty, it is not intellectual beauty. There is a world of matter and of mind and of heart. Goodness is beauty of heart. It elevates and lifts us up. We may look at sin so much that we will become sinful. Let us look at God's goodness that we may become good. We know that he is good. We may not know all about his goodness, but we can know much more than we do. Eternity alone will reveal it.

God bestows his goodness upon men. His will forgive sin. Sin drives me away from God and all that is good. He will forgive me and help me. Man may fail, but God will forbear and help us try gain.

God will impart his goodness to his children. We may not only see God's goodness but we may partake of it and be like Him. Day by day we may grow like Him and finally through Christ's redemptive work become like Him free from sin.

In the evening the Y. P. S. C. E. was led by Miss May Gibb. The topic was "The Endeavor Pledge, What It Does to Strengthen Us." A large number were present. Many good thoughts were presented.

For his evening sermon Rev. Mr. Hanley took for his subject, "The Trials of Life Met Heroically." His text was Isaiah 53:7.

The prophet must have been inspired to have so truthfully foretold the life of Christ.

Christ was misunderstood by his own people and suffered many trials. Amid all these things he complained not. Unlike other Bible characters he was silent in trial. Trials may crush some men. It ought not to be so. Trials may embitter some. Hatred ought not to enter our hearts. Christ was subject to great trials but he was not crushed or embittered. He was sweet and tender in all his dealings with those who opposed him. How could he do this?

First He was self-forgetful. He gave his life for others. Do good to others and you will lose sight of self and be able to live sweet and tender toward others.

Second. Christ took hold of the future. He looked forward to the triumph of His kingdom. It gave him strength to quietly endure. No man can be strong who lives in the present. Look forward, my brother, to that which is to come. It will give you strength to endure.

Third. He came to do his Father's will. Submit your will to God's will and it will give you strength to endure all that He sends you. Let Him lead, and all will be well. The topic for Thursday evening is "The Model Prayer Meeting."

AT THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Rev. Robert C. Denison Was Greeted By a Large Audience Yesterday.

There was a large congregation at the Congregational church yesterday morning. The pastor spoke on the subject "The Pure of Heart and Their Vision."

We have a different feeling in the presence of purity than in that of any other human nature. We admire the brilliant man, we honor the just man, we love the gentle man but we reverence a pure man.

In this free age when a man may do as he pleases and when the highest value is placed upon mere physical success and happiness the temptation to let our lives become sordid is very great. It may help if we can get a clear idea of what purity of the heart really is. We have generally thought of purity as the absence of impurities. But it must mean something more strong than this mere negation. For if purity consisted only in freedom from impurities then he who never touched the impure world would be the purest man. But this is by no means the case. To cast out one impurity and have nothing positive in its place is to make room for many other impurities. In nature the secret of purity is always motion. The moving water runs itself pure—the motion of the winds purifies a smoky air. In the spiritual world what corresponds to the motion of nature is emotion, interest, enthusiasm. The man that has a moving enthusiasm towards some good end will be kept pure by it. His interest in the truth will leave neither time nor space for an impurity. Christ moved among evil see us and men but took no impurity from them for his passionate interest in God preserved him. This then, is the secret of purity; to be so enthusiastic in the movement of one's life through God that the impure shall be crowded out.

Such purity of heart develops the vision of God. As the eye responds to the light it develops the power to see. As a man lets his interest move out towards certain things in life he develops the power to see them. The artist's eye can detect beauty, the lumberman's eye can detect a tree in which there is good timber, the miner will quickly discover the mineral in a rock. So the soul that is interested in God will develop the power to see God.

If you have a strong, enthusiastic purpose to serve God and your life moves steadily towards Him, whether there be darkness or daylight upon the hills your life can walk in the perpetual vision of the King of Kings.

AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Rev. E. H. Pence Talks of "The Shortening of Youth."

Rev. E. H. Pence of the Presbyterian church chose for his subject yesterday morning "The Shortening of Youth," and for his text these words: "The days of his Youth hast Thou Shortened"—Psalm 29:45.

It seems that from the time of Job, when his counselors angered young Elihu, that there has been an enmity between manhood and youth, a mutual misunderstanding, and it is to negotiate a kind of peace treaty that we have chosen our text.

There is natural religiousness in the child which God himself planted there. It is true that heredity may affect it, and the irreligiousness of the father or mother may cloud the religiousness of the child, but where workers in the slums often find cases where, so far as known, there is no sign of godliness, they never find a case where there is no capacity whatever for goodness.

There are qualities in childhood peculiar to it. The child has a sense of the person of God. You might not be able to inspire it much with the right as a principle. That requires the effort of a more or less disciplined mind. There is a spirit in man planted there by Almighty God and "the inspiration of the Almighty giveth them understanding." The child's morality has its restraint from evil in the feeling of God's displeasure. But the feeling of God's delight therein is its moral motive and as a motive it never can be better.

You will find also that in the child is a natural trustfulness in God. You may have to dig under some rubbish to find it, but it is there, and your success as a father, mother or teacher, depends upon your ability to dig for it. That trust is the most priceless boon in the human being. There are some of us who would give a great deal to have it back. Whatever by association blunts the fine sense of trustfulness and the fine edge of conscience is perilous to the young man

A Friendly Feeling. "No, suh," said Col. Carter to the man with small, angry-looking spots on his forehead, "I shall not permit you to abuse the mosquito in my presence. I used to dislike them, but now I am one of the staunchest friends that a mosquito has."

"Still, they annoy me," replied the man with the spots. "Of course. But they must live. Why complain because the mosquito stays up all night and has his collations, his songs and his aft-dinner speeches?" "You seem to feel very kindly toward the brute."

"I have reason to. Let me tell you, suh, that a mosquito saved the life of a friend of mine. My friend told me the story himself. We were speaking of large mosquitoes, and he said that he once found himself in a prohibition town, where the mosquitoes were larger than any he had ever seen. The party he was with had a bottle, but no corkscrew, and they would have perished with thirst if they had not taken one of these mosquitoes, extracted his bill, and used it to get the cork out. That mosquito was a martyr, suh, and ever since that time, suh, I have respected him and his relations,"—Washington Star.

LIKE HYPNOTISM.

Habits That Appear Almost Hypnotic.

The tendency with which some habits stick to people, or people stick to the habits, is very remarkable, particularly the tobacco and coffee habit.

People are almost as if they were in reality under a hypnotic spell. They promise themselves and friends time and again that they will leave off, when they find health forsaking them, but they make one excuse or another and keep on the dreary way as if guided by an unseen spirit of evil.

Physicians realize the uselessness of treating a patient for any of the multitude of nervous diseases so long as the poisonous alkaloids of tobacco and coffee are being taken into the system even in minute doses.

It is a simple matter to break the coffee spell if the food-drink, Postum, the health coffee made by the Postum Cereal Co. (Lim.), of Battle Creek, Mich., is used in its place. This is a fac-simile of fine Mocha coffee in looks, when brewed, and changes to the rich golden brown of old Java when cream is added. Being made wholly of grains intended by the Creator for man's subsistence, it makes red blood quickly and is fattening and nourishing. The muddy complexion disappears, and in its place comes the clear skin of health, with rich blood coursing back of it. Many people are sick and do not know that it is the insidious poison of coffee that prostrates stomach and liver and causes it. They laugh at first, but a trial of a week without coffee and using the food-drink, Postum, makes one wake up to a great big live fact.

The children can sip from papa's or mama's coffee cup, if it happens to contain Postum Cereal Food Coffee, and there little bodies will grow round and fat under the nourishment of the pure grains, but it is a heartless proceeding to feed the tender bodies on coffee, as every one knows the puny, sickly looks of coffee drinking children.

Let people adopt healthful food and drink and "throw physics to the dogs."

PHYSIC BY SUGGESTION.

Some New Experiments with Medicines in Glass Tubes.

Dr. Luys, a member of the French academy of medicine, expects startling results from a series of experiments which he claims to have carried to a successful conclusion, says the Baltimore Sun. The doctor believes that it is possible to administer drugs without compelling the patient to swallow them. In brief, he contends that by throwing the subject into a hypnotic state the medical influence of the drugs may be injected into his system by merely presenting the dose, in a closed tube, near his eye, ear or his neck. One peculiar feature of the doctor's experiments is the fact that the drug has a different effect when held on opposite sides of the patient's head. For instance, pepper presented on the right side causes an expression of pleasure, but when presented on the left side the subject showed anxiety and worry. Equally phate of morphine, heliotrope, fennel, different effects were noted when sulphuric acid and pure water were applied.

This confirms, so the doctor says, the theory of Charcot, that there is some magnetic difference between the right and left side of a person under hypnotic control. If Dr. Luys succeeds in administering drugs by hypnotic suggestion it is possible that the days of the "learned apothecary" are numbered. Humanity will no longer be compelled to swallow the pills and mixtures of the druggist, but will be able to get relief from a small quantity of the remedy introduced into the anatomy only by suggestion. The doctor notes that when a tube of pure water was held at the right side of a hypnotized patient's head it was followed by "horrible shakings and convulsions."

When it was presented on the left side the expression of the subject's face indicated a most agreeable sensation. There is a wide and singularly useful application of pure water which may be made in the case of those festive gentlemen who find their joy in the "drowning bowl" with disastrous consequences next morning. The bibulously inclined subject could "make a night of it" off a tube of water held to the left side of the face, and on the morrow he could complete the illusion by applying it to the right side and getting the jim-jams. Then he could recover and renew the jag ad libitum. Dr. Luys may turn out to be a great reformer.

BRUTUS WAS SMART.

Knew When the Conversation Touched on His Battle With Bruin.

A writer in the American Field tells of a fight between a black bear and a mongrel cur that could not boast of lineage or personal appearance. He put up a game fight, however, only to be worsted in the end by a powerful stroke of bruin's paw. When the bear was dispatched by the dog's master it was found that Brutus, the dog, was very badly used up and he presented a sorry appearance. He was carefully nursed back to health and strength again and proved useful in many a hunting expedition. Some time after the dog's adventure with the bear one of the party—Col. B.—left home and remained away for several years. When he returned he found Brutus an old dog bearing his honorable scars with the sedate dignity of a worthy pensioner. At first the dog did not recognize the colonel, the memory of old association seemed blotted out. One day, after having been home about a week, Col. B. and his brothers were sitting together talking of old times, while Brutus lay near by, apparently dozing. During the conversation the incident wherein Brutus was so badly used up by the bear was brought up; that memorable hunting exploit was gone over and the courageous conduct of the dog extolled as it had been years before. The old dog remained quiet while the events of the first bear hunt were being discussed until his fight with bruin was reached. At this point Brutus jumped up and sprang toward Col. B. in demonstrative recognition, showing that he had heard the conversation and that his memory had been awakened by the recounting of the unfortunate experience with the bear.

Purification of Water.

According to the latest theories, it will soon be possible to purify water by the addition of colonies of minute living organisms that devour all of the objectionable and impure material in the water, leaving it clean and healthful. The process is said to consist of arranging masses of sand in suitable shape and colonizing these small folk therein. They soon build minute homes for themselves in the scum or slime that adheres to the sand-grains. Three or four days after the filter is set is must remain undisturbed until the purifying agents have had time to get their houses in order. Then the water passes slowly through, and the multitude of benevolent creatures gather out of the tide every vestige of the flotsam and jetsam that is injurious to humanity and devour it. Thus we have a living filter and one that is practically self-supporting, as the only care it needs is the occasional removal of a thin layer of the top sand that in a short time becomes clogged with the coarser impurities of the water.

DANGER IN SODA.

Serious Results Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended for a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice almost daily, and one which is fraught with danger; moreover the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach trouble gets worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlandson recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20 grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, pepsines, and digestive elements essential to good digestion, and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for sour stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create a healthy appetite, increase flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic, but intended only for stomach diseases and weakness and will be found reliable in all stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

All druggists sell Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at 50 cts. per package.

A little book describing all forms of stomach weakness and their cure mailed free by addressing the Stuart Co., of Marshall, Mich.

FEMININE INVENTORS.

American Women Have Made Great Progress in This Regard.

The United States patent office records give some interesting information in regard to the progress of the inventive faculty among American women. The office was established in 1790, but it was nearly twenty years before a patent was issued to a woman. The first was in 1809. This was issued for a method of weaving straw with silk or thread. In 1826 there were fourteen patents issued to women, a larger number by far than had been issued any previous year. It is singular to note that the feminine genius for invention appeared to slumber from that time until it was suddenly aroused by the great war. Many of the women's patents that then poured into the patent office were for implements and materials for war and for hospital appliances and sick-room devices. From the sixties the number of women patentees steadily increased. In 1870 it was 60; in 1880, over 90; in 1890, over 200, and in 1893, over 300. From 1809 to 1888 women's inventions averaged thirty a year; from 1888 to 1892, 230 a year, and since 1892, 230 a year.

Of the subject of these inventions wearing apparel heads the list, with 160 different patents in two years and a half. Next came cooking utensils, with 100 inventions; furniture, 55; heating or washing or cleansing apparatus, more than 40 each; sewing and spinning devices, and building apparatus, about 30 each, and the educational and surgical apparatus, toys and trunks, about 20 each. Other lines in which women have tried their inventive genius are perambulators, barrel and bicycle attachments, printing and bottling apparatus, boxes and baskets, clocks, horseshoes, motors, musical instruments, plumbing and preserving devices, screens, stationery, theatrical apparatus, toilet articles and typewriting attachments. Most of the patents were for improvements on some previously existing device.

IN SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A Frightened Little Boy's Reply to the Superintendent.

Some time last year a family removed from St. Joseph, Mo., to Chicago. The younger son of the family is a lad of about 9 years old, and a few days ago the whole Sabbath school which this youth attends was being questioned by the superintendent upon the lesson of the day. The little fellow has an unusually bright and interesting face, and as his class was seated directly in front of the superintendent, he was naturally attracted to him. The lesson was of Moses and how the Red Sea had separated and permitted him to lead his hosts through the divided waters to safety.

When the superintendent had finished relating the story he concluded to see how much his youthful listeners had taken in.

"Who was it, children," he questioned, "that led the Israelites into the promised land?"

With the usual timidity of children about "speaking out in meeting," none of them replied. The boys looked at each other and giggled, but none offered any response.

"Now, I know you all know his name," said the superintendent in patronizing tones. "Just think a moment and tell me. Won't some of you? Let this little man tell me," he said, pointing at the recent comer from the south.

"I don't know, sir; I don't live here. I only came up from Missouri the other day," was the frightened reply.—Chicago Chronicle.

ALL NIGHT REFORM CLUBS.

Word comes from Chicago that there is to be a "change" this spring. Bath House John Coughlin, the alderman most outsiders regard as typical of Chicago, is to be ousted. Business men haven't cut much figure in the politics of the First ward of Chicago, heretofore. They do business in the First ward but they live and vote in Hyde Park or Lake View or Englewood. Things have grown so bad, however, that further endurance is impossible. Clubs of twenty five and fifty business and professional men are being formed throughout the First ward, pledged to sleep down town long enough to acquire legal residence before the spring election. The clubs have engaged rooms at all the available hotels and promise to turn out a vote next month that will give the bath-house alderman and his friend and co-laborer, "Hinky Dink," a good many points on colonization. Incidentally, the reform club ideas will give a good many frivolous and light-minded husbands an excuse for staying out all night from now until April 6, without incurring serious consequences at home.

EAGER FOR THE NEW MEASURE.

Democrats are not as sure as they were four years ago that protective ideas are worthless. In the first place the democratic party after distinctly pledging itself to enact a tariff for revenue only, shrank from fulfilling the promise when it had possession of all branches of the government. The tariff which was established and which now impoverishes the treasury and clogs the industries of the people, is acknowledged by all parties to be a non-descript. It is protective in spots to suit certain party interests, and to this extent is a denial of free trade doctrines. Its disastrous failure to provide a sufficient revenue and encourage business activities is so clear that no one ventures to dispute the fact. The existing tariff has no friends and never had any. The new republican measure is awaited eagerly on all hands.

Wisconsin people are too narrow-minded to compete with Chicago. For instance that Wapaca district attorney is in the hottest kind of hot water because the neighbors think he took ten or fifteen dollars for compounding felony; while Jake Kern, in Chicago, got offensively rich off one term in the district attorney's office, and came near being sent to congress in consequence.

CHICAGO MARKETS BY WIRE.

Mr. Lindblom's Letter.

Chicago, March 15.—[Special]—In spite of reports about ruined crops in Illinois, I beg leave to question the accuracy and honesty of the report. The conditions have been perfect and it is an absolute impossibility to tell anything about wheat until we have had a week of warm growing weather. I have seen wheat fields bare and apparently dead on April 4 which yielded a full crop and knew of wheat that looked dead on May 1 which yielded eighteen bushels per acre. Every year we hear of farmers plowing up wheat and getting good crops on what they had no time to plow. Anybody who pretends to tell anything about the wheat crop now is not reliable. Some reports say that the farmer will shoo spring wheat. The damage reported is largely on late spring wheat. This is an extra acreage put in after season due to the high price and at that should be lost normal conditions will prevail. The great army of speculators will not reason however, and they will buy wheat on the crop reports and market will advance while they are doing it, and it may turn out later on that serious damage has been done also. We had better be conservative. It is what the crowd believes that governs the market while they are acting. Facts will later on. The visible supply decreased much more than anybody expected, and yet the trade prefers to buy the new crop instead of the old one. The whole bull movement has been based on a demand for cash wheat in May and June and we advise our friends to keep long of May in preference to long of pay for the wheat when it is delivered. If wheat is not good for May it is not for July. That is my opinion. Corn is rather weak. The weather is good for corn. Pork, on the other hand, is very strong, and we have no apologies to make for our views repeatedly expressed. Outsiders are beginning to buy in small lots and that means a good deal while they are buying. Receipts of wheat at primary receipts are small at primary markets. Minneapolis and Duluth received hardly anything but it is due to the snow blockade.

Two Killed in a Collision.

Danville, Ill., March 15.—In a collision which occurred Sunday afternoon on the Shelbyville division of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, Fireman John Cody and Engineer Edward Ray were killed, and Oscar Kinerim, switchman, is probably fatally injured. Engineer A. H. La Rue has two ribs broken. The accident was caused by the switching crew conductor, Thomas Logan, running from Grape Creek to Danville without orders. His train consisted of an engine and two cars. It struck the south-bound engine on the Stoney Creek bridge. Engineer La Rue in jumping from his engine struck the bridge, breaking both ribs. His fireman, C. G. Clark, also escaped by jumping.

Fort Wayne Tragedy Still a Mystery.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 15.—The funeral of Attorney Will E. Colerick will be held Tuesday afternoon. His fiancée, Miss Mae Hall, lies in a comatose condition at Hope hospital. Dr. Porter says that the condition of Mae Hall positively indicates mineral poisoning and evidences of asphyxiation are apparent. The general opinion is that no vegetable poison was taken and that the drug was a deadly mineral preparation. No motive can be ascribed for suicide, and friends of the unfortunate couple are anxiously awaiting an examination when Miss Hall regains consciousness.

No Respite for Walling.

Frankfort, Ky., March 15.—Many false reports have been sent out about the governor's action in the Walling and Jackson cases. Late Friday evening he finally passed upon Jackson's case, refusing to interfere. He then announced and continues to announce that he will not pass on Walling's case till to-night or later. Walling's friends are generally in hopes, from the governor's manner, that he will respite Walling for a few days, or until Jackson is hanged, and all hope of any confession from him is dispelled or fulfilled. It is possible, though not probable, that he will do so.

Reed to Preside Again.

Washington, March 15.—The caucus of Republican members-elect which was held Saturday night voted by acclamation to renominate Speaker Reed and all the officers of the last house to serve through the Fifty-fifth congress. McElroy, postmaster.

The Democratic caucus accorded the honor of speakership nomination to Joseph W. Bailey of Texas. The fight was spirited.

George Fogel was cut about the head, leg bruised and he was injured internally. He may die. Frank Schwitzer had his knee dislocated. Several others were severely bruised.

Powers Asked to Intervene.

Constantinople, March 15.—It is reported that Russia has proposed to the powers to intervene in Bulgaria and Servia to prevent the opening of the Macedonian question. Two hundred and fifty self-propelling torpedoes of a new model have arrived from Germany to be sent to Smyrna, Salonica, Alexandria, Prevesa and other ports as a protection against possible attack by Greek cruisers.

LEROY HOWE TALKS OF HIS TROUBLES

DARIEN BOY HERE, ENROUTE TO WAUPUN.

Says He Has Nothing Against Anyone Who Was Connected With His Trial, and Gained in Weight While In Jail — Taken to Waupun at Noon.

Shackled to the wrist of Sheriff Frederick McMillan, Leroy Howe, the condemned boy murderer, arrived in the city at 9:35 o'clock this morning from Elkhorn.

At the Rock county jail, Howe spent the morning, and at noon he left for the state's prison at Waupun, where he will begin today his life sentence.

But few people at the depot knew who he was, and as the train came to a stop, the sheriff, with his prisoner and Deputy Sheriff Creighton quietly walked down Academy and Pleasant streets to the jail. At the jail Howe was assigned by Turnkey Samuel Brown to the south corridor, and his companion was Charles Folom, the alleged Clinton fire bug.

Glad It Is Over.

"I am mighty glad the whole thing is over," remarked Howe to a Gazette reporter. "It seems so quiet here in this jail. When I left Elkhorn this morning there were fifty-two prisoners in jail so you can imagine just about how much rest I have been getting. It would have been just ten months the twenty-fourth of next July since I was arrested. Yes," he continued in answer to a question,
"I am a young man, I will not be twenty until next June although I may look older. I now weigh 180 pounds and when I was first put in jail I weighed but 160 pounds, so you can see jail life has agreed with me.
Most of my meals, however, have come from outside the jail."

Finds no Fault.

"I have no fault to find with anyone connected with the trial," continued Howe, "as for my attorney, Ben Barnes, I think he did as well by me as any man could. As you know, I was convicted wholly by circumstantial evidence and I now live in hopes of a new trial. I do not exactly know what I will do when I get to Waupun, for as I have been a farmer all my life I have no regular trade. I am a member of the Woodmen and I think they and my friends believe me not guilty."

At 11:30 o'clock Howe was served with dinner, and at 12:15 o'clock he left the jail for the Northwestern depot. Here an anxious crowd were waiting to take a look at the boy mur-derer, and at 12:45 he was whirled away towards a living tomb, where he will spend the remainder of his days behind barred doors and prison walls.

Howe does not look like a murderer.

He wore a blue flannel shirt and a suit of gray. His facial expression is frank and open.

Hayner Goes to Prison, Too.

Eli Hayner kissed his wife and brother goodbye at the depot this noon and in charge of Sheriff Stearns of Green county he left for the state prison at Waupun where he will spend the next year.

Hayner was sentenced from Monroe by Judge John K. Bennett for forging James Martin's name to a note for $150. He is a married man and has always borne a good reputation. After forging the note, the matter was settled in full and Judge Bennett gave him the lightest possible sentence.

Hayner was not handcuffed and he spent the morning at a local hotel in place of remaining in jail.

Blindness Through Carelessness.

The case of a young lady brought to this city today for treatment by Dr.
McPherson, shows the dangerous folly of having glasses fitted or eyes treated by anyone except a qualified physician. The girl's eyes commenced troubling her a year ago, and she was taken out of school, as the parents thought the eyes were overworked. This not giving relief, a pair of glasses was fitted by a jeweler, who thought this was all that was needed.

The glasses seemed to make the trouble worse, and late in December a traveling optician visited the girl and said he could fit glasses that would stop the trouble. His glasses did no good and the parents had the child examined by Dr. McPherson today, but only to learn that nothing could be done, and that the girl would soon be totally blind. They were advised that she be placed in the School for the Blind.

A Tree Embowered House on a Large Plantation in Upolu.

The St. Nicholas publishes a number of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Letters to Young Friends." Mr. Lloyd Osbourne, Stevenson's stepson, describes the novelist's Samoan home as follows in the introduction to the letters: Mr. Stevenson knew as little as you do about Samoa and the remote south seas when, several years ago, he came to San Francisco and set sail in a beautiful schooner yacht, hoping the trade wind would blow him to some pleasant isle where he might get well and strong again. The "Shining Ship" (for that was what the natives called her) poked her sharp nose into many a sweet bay and dark blue lagoon and passed from island to island through surf-swept reeds, where the sharks played like minnows beneath her keel, but she came no nearer the haven for which she was in search. At last she reached an island called Oahu, which was so pleasant to look at and so agreeable to live in that Mr. Stevenson thought his voyage was over. The king of Oahu was a very agreeable man, too, and wished Mr. Stevenson never to go away, but to stay with him all his life and be his friend. So Mr. Stevenson stayed many months in Oahu and would have been very happy and contented had it not been for the trade wind, which was always telling him about the fine islands further on, until he was persuaded to say good-by to the king and set sail again. The trade wind took him a long road through many queer and dangerous places before he brought him within sight of Upolu in Samoa, and told him to pack up and go ashore, which Mr. Stevenson was very glad to do, for he quite agreed with the trade wind that Upolu was the finest island in the whole ocean. Here he bought a large tract of land, which he called "Vailima," and built a big house and planted bananas and breadfruit trees and coconuts and mangos and other trees with strange names, in order to feed the brown people who gathered about him and made him the head of their tribe. They called him "Tusitala," or the "Writer of Tales," for his own name was too hard for them to say. In a short time Mr. Story-Teller grew well and strong, just as he hoped he would, and remained grateful all his days to the trade wind for bringing him to Upolu; and he always made it a point of speaking kindly about it in his books.

RIVERS

Seem Doomed by Civilization to Universal Pollution.

The sweet poet William Cowper is needed to sing the funeral dirge of English rivers. About 50 years since I had to pass a year in smoky Manchester. In 1800 the river Irwell, flowing through the town, had been a pure, pleasant stream, where fish abounded, as some old men could well remember. When I was there it was a foul ditch of inky hue and loathsome smell. The legal business which I had in part to attend to in Manchester was the way in which some of the mill owners used the water of the canal passing through the town, so that my thoughts were specially directed to river and canal pollutions. Years have rolled on since then; factories have largely increased in number, more and more of England's beautiful rivers and country scenes have been fouled and blackened, but the worst feature of all has been that the factories have not only used the rivers for the legitimate purposes I referred to, but have made them the outlet of all their filth—streams of muddy refuse. More unhappy still, the thousands of cottages crowded in these large manufacturing towns have needed outlets; so sewer drains have been formed, the only outlet for which is the unfortunate river or stream of any kind flowing through or near the town. Year by year this evil increased, more rivers being doomed to put on the inky hue, until whole towns with their 100,000 of inhabitants thus caused the rivers to be polluted, and, at length, the noblest grandest river of the world, because flowing through the greatest, wealthiest city of the world, yielded its once pure waters and tides to the yoke, and, oh! tell it not to the shades of departed artist-painters, poets, historians or lovers of nature, became one vast cesspool for the 6,000,000 inhabitants who dwell near its course.

The Baby's Picture.

"I am tired to death," declared Mrs. Matronly as she reached home from downtown the other evening. "What is the matter?" asked her husband. "Been having baby's picture taken. They have a way of taking them instantaneously now, you know." "How long were you at it?" "Three hours and a half."—Detroit Free Press.

STORY OF THE SALMON.

Ascends the River in Autumn to Deposit the Eggs.

In the autumn time and onward to the beginning of the next year the mother salmon ascends the rivers to deposit her eggs and thus to secure the continuance of her race, says Chambers' Journal. In connection with this periodical visit or visits to the river must be mentioned a very curious fact. The idea is entertained very strongly by some authorities that a salmon invariably returns to its native river or that in which it was bred. It has even been asserted by fishermen that, when several rivers enter the sea in one stream (as at Bonar bridge, for example) the salmon bred in each river will pass back into their own water and will avoid the strange streams. The late Frank Buckland, a strong believer in the instinct of the fish, regarded the sense of smell as that which led it to its native river. Perhaps the truth is that for the most part salmon do return to their own rivers, but that the practice and habit are not necessarily invariable. We know the fishes certainly swim great distances along coastlines, where they are captured in stake and bag nets, and it may well be the case that now and then a fish will turn into a river that is near in preference to seeking its own and distant water. Arrived in her river the mother salmon begins to scoop out a kind of trench in the gravel of the stream. This she effects by plowing into the gravel with her body. This trench is to be the nursery of her young. The eggs are laid in the furrow and are duly fertilized by the male salmon. Then the trench is filled in by the efforts of both parents, the eggs are covered with gravel, and the mound thus formed is called, in the fisher's language, a "redd." How many eggs a mother salmon will deposit is, of course, a difficult question to determine, but a stock calculation maintains that she produces about 900 eggs for every pound she weighs. Each egg in its diameter measures about a quarter of an inch, and it is estimated that 25,000 eggs go to a gallon.

MRS. PARVENU

Was in Her New Home, and Was BOUND to Have Things in Style.

Detroit Free Press: Mrs. Parvenu received her lady caller with gush and bad grammar while dismissing the maid with an injunction to see that all the solid silver and jewels were placed in the safe.

"Now, set right down and make yourself to hum," as she made a capacious lap for the pet cat. "I'm terribly glad to see you, fur we've got settled now, and if there's anything under the blue canopy that I like it is to have company drop in and visit."

"You have a delightful home here, Mrs. Parvenu."

"Yes, and it cost us a pot of money. Ezry ain't much fur style, but I jist said to him, 'what's the use of gettin' rich if you don't enjoy it after,' and he gin in jist as he allers does. But it's been a botheration from the start. When the feller what was tryin' to sell us the house called, I heered him tell Ezry that there was a fine picture moldin' on the wall. I walked right in on 'em then and there and said if there was a picture moldin' on the wall the house was damp and we wouldn't have it. Ezry jist laughed, but I made him have the matter looked up."

The lady caller has tact and she pretended to recall something in her own household experience while having a good laugh.

"Then I had trouble with Ezry about his bed. The furnitior man told me that one of these here wire screen beds was jist the thing, so I ordered one for Ezry's bedwore. He occupied it one night and then he jist kicked over the dashboard. He vowed he'd jist 'sleave sleep on a harrar, and I had to have a tick put on the screen bed."

Again the lady visitor had to quickly tell a story to excuse her laughter.

But when Mrs. Parvenu took her visitor upstairs, showed her a bathtub alive with gold fish, and called it an "anti-quarian," the tactful lady had to make her escape, and when she leaned against the fence around the corner for five minutes, passersby wondered what so dainty and so respectable looking a woman could have been celebrating.

Where Jackson Fought a Duel.

During the storm last week a large red elm tree in front of Tom Darden's house, near town, was blown down. This elm was perhaps the most historic tree in the country and was known as the "Dickerson tree." It was situated on the grounds whereon the famed Jackson-Dickerson duel was fought years ago, and under its spreading branches Dickerson reclined awaiting medical attention after being mortally wounded by Gen. Jackson. The trunk of this old tree measures only four feet in length, while its branches measure 100 feet across. Mr. Darden greatly regrets the uprooting of this old forestry landmark.—Adairville Banner.

Then He Proposed.

They had looked soulfully into each other's eyes for some time, but somehow he didn't seem to come to the point. Then suddenly he made a discovery.

"You have your mother's beautiful eyes," he said. She felt that the time had come to play her trump card.

"I have also," she said, "my father's lovely checkbook."

Inside of 30 minutes their engagement was announced.—Chicago Evening Post.

A Leading Question.

"For ten years," said the new boarder at a boarding-house, "my habits were as regular as clock-work. I rose on the stroke of six; half an hour later I sat down to breakfast; at seven I was at work; dined at 12, ate supper at six, and I was in bed at 9:30; ate only healthy food, and hadn't a sick day in all that time."

"Dear me," said the deacon, in sympathetic tones, "and what were you in for?"

(An awful silence ensued.)—Tit-Bits.

The Cheerful Idiot.

"It must have been a very tender-hearted butcher who killed this lamb," said the Cheerful Idiot, pausing in the sawing of his chop.

"Why?" kindly asked the shoe clerk boarder.

"He must have hesitated three or four years before striking the fatal blow."—Indianapolis Journal.

Didn't Show Up.

Mrs. Hawkins—Gracious! What was the matter?

*Hawkins—He was fool enough to put off his farewell dinner till the night before the wedding day.—Brooklyn Life.

No More Romance.

She feared to make the avowal. "Edward," she faltered when she could no longer postpone the inevitable, "my father has failed in business."

He shivered. "Alas!" he sighed, "now that you are become rich I suppose our fond dream of love is at an end."—Detroit Tribune.

Pleasant Woman to Live With.

"The weather is very trying for everybody," says the physician.

Dangers of the Grip.

The greatest danger from La Grippe is of its resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for La Grippe, we have to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that this remedy is a certain preventive of that dread disease. It will effect a permanent cure in less time than any other treatment. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale at C. D. Stevens' Pharmacy, Corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

From Cripple Creek.

After the big fire in Cripple Creek, I took a severe cold and tried many remedies without help, the cold only becoming more settled. After using three small bottles of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, both the cough and cold left me, and in this high altitude it takes a meritorious cough remedy to do any good.—G. B. Henderson, Editor Daily Advertiser. For sale at C. D. Stevens' Pharmacy, Corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

Rheumatism Quickly Cured.

After having been confined to the house for eleven days and paying out $25 in doctor bills without benefit, M. Frank Dolson of Sault Ste. ## CARLYLE AND THE CABBIE.

How the Latter Lost the Trade of the Great Philosopher.

Carlyle was well known to London cabmen. For years he engaged a particular driver for the rank, and refused to have any other. This man, however, lost his custom in a somewhat peculiar manner.

Some medical students got to know of his preference for the driver, and, getting hold of the driver one day, they inquired if he knew who his fare was, when he told them he did not. The students informed him that he was one of the most famous and eccentric writers of the day, and, giving him a book, advised him to appear to be reading it whenever Carlyle approached the stand.

Cabby, without any suspicion, acted on their advice, and when the old sage next came for a cab he seemed deeply impressed in a very pretentious book.

"Hillo! what's that you're readin'?" inquired the Ecclefechan philosopher.

"A most hoot-an'-hoot, tip-top, splendid book, about that 'ere French revolution," was cabby's gushing reply.

"Eh! what dae ye say? Let me see it," said Carlyle, holding out his hand. "Oh, certainly, sir," said the driver, handing him a copy of his "History of the French Revolution."

"Weel, my man," inquired the sage, apparently delighted, "are ye sure that you're readin' this work intelligently?" "Perfectly sure," said the Jehu, confidently; then, thinking he ought to say something in praise of the book, he added, "Why, sir, it's almost as good as 'The Newgate Calendar.'"

The grim old Dumfriessian glared at him, grunted out something, turned abruptly around, and engaged the next cab. From that day Carlyle never looked at him, but stuck to the second man, who happened to have had the honor of driving most of the distinguished men of the century.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

QUEEN VICTORIA'S HANDS.

How She Keeps Them Plump, White and Unwrinkled.

"You are quite right in your surmise that her majesty possesses wonderfully beautiful hands, though they are by no means small for her height; that they are plump, white and unwrinkled. Would you like to know the reason?" asked the man who was beautifying my hands for a dinner party.

Of course I was all attention. "Well, as you are doubtless aware, her majesty is a great knitter. Indeed, she is invariably at work with her needles, either at scarfs or mittens for the poor, little vests for her many great-grandchildren, or coats and bed quilts. The mere exercise induced by the hand tends to whiten, refine and keep them in good shape, while, in the same way, the hands never look more attractive than when so employed."

"Why have so many cooks prettily shaped hands and arms?" I asked. "Simply because they do so much with them. Kneading bread is one of the best beautifiers the hands can have. Where women who work much in the house usually fail to secure pretty hands is by not drying them well after each washing, and by not wearing gloves for rough labor, such as the cleaning of grates. Of course, it is a wee bit of trouble always to put on gloves, but smooth, unwrinkled hands are worth a good deal to every woman, or should be, I think."—Answers.

Fencing in the Giant's Causeway.

As a sequel to recent meritorious attempts to direct the attention of tourists to the many charms of scenery and greenery existing in "the distressful country," comes the humor that the astute owner of that portion of the coast embellished by the well-known Giant's Causeway is busily at work upon a ring fence which will effectually place this natural phenomenon on the footing of a paying exhibition. This policy is scarcely likely to increase the confidence of hesitating visitors who, at the present time, can with difficulty be persuaded to put aside prejudice and undertake that most delightful experience—an investigation of the many points of interest to be found in Ireland.—London Truth.

Perfectly Impartial.

The wife of one of Lord Powis' keepers was asked by the clergyman of her own parish why she went running off three miles to another church whenever the earl went there. Why didn't she keep to her own church? "His lordship likes to see his servants at church," replied the woman. "Which do you think most of, then," asked the parson, "Lord Powis or the Almighty?" "They have both been very good to me, sir," replied the woman, averse to invidious comparisons.—Household Words.

Tardy Penitence.

"Why won't mamma's little boy tell mamma what he's been stuffing himself with?" anxiously asked the maternal parent, bending over the couch. "You have been in the pantry, Johnny, eating too much of something you ought not to have eaten at all, and you won't tell me what it is. It makes me sick at heart!"

"It makes me sick o' tart, too!" moaned Johnny, turning his face to the wall.

But mamma did not catch on.

To Improve the Flavor of Coffee.

During damp weather in the summer coffee often loses its flavor and strength. An old housekeeper says that if the quantity of coffee berries needed for breakfast be put into a bowl, covered closely, and put into the warming oven over night the flavor of the coffee will be much improved.—New York Sun.

SPEECHES HEARD BY FEW.

Some of Them Delivered to a Very Small Number of Auditors.

It is a curious fact that many of the great speeches which gave immortality to the orators who made them were delivered in comparatively small rooms and to small audiences. When Webster made his great argument in the Dartmouth college case, aside from the bar, and the officials in charge of the room there were not fifty persons present, and yet many believe that he spoke to listening senators and other high officials. When we read of Patrick Henry's wonderful display of eloquence we see in our mind's eye a spacious room and an immense crowd of people listening to the burning words with almost breathless attention. But, in truth, many of these speeches which quickened or changed the march of events were delivered in a small room and to a few hearers, never more than 150. "Could it have been here, in this oaken chapel of fifty pews," wrote Holmes, the gifted author of "Sprondo," "that Patrick Henry delivered the greatest and best known of all his speeches?" Was it here that he uttered those words of doom so unexpected, and then so unwelcome, "We must fight?" Even here. But the words were spoken in a tone and manner worthy the men to whom they were addressed, and who were so impressed with them that for several moments they were almost awe-stricken. It was only when the voice of Richard Henry Lee, the other matchless Virginian orator, who rose to second the words of Henry, rang through the room that they were called back to themselves. Seward's speech in defense of William Freeman was undoubtedly the greatest and most brilliant effort of his professional life. It did for him more perhaps, than the conduct of any case has given any other in the state of New York in perpetuating his name. And yet the audience that listened to him was not less than 120 in number. A friend expressed some surprise that an argument of so much power, learning and eloquence should have attracted so few listeners.

"My dear sir," said Seward, "my audience was in no sense limited. The civilized world was my audience. Posterity will hear it, and generations unborn will praise or censure it, from the different standpoints in which they will view it. I did not make it for a part of 'the maddening crowd's ignoble strife.'"

Horace Greeley said: "Seward's speech in defense of William Freeman is one of the masterpieces in the history of oratory, reason, logic and humanity."

The Formation of the Acorn.

The male flowers of the oak are gathered in distant clusters round a long, swaying stalk; they approach much nearer to the conventional idea of a flower individually. Instead of being a mere aggregation of anthers or pollen cells on simple scales, those of the oak are possessed of distinct star-like, h. a. calyces, each marked off into six or seven lobes, and containing ten stamens, with two-celled anthers. Then the female flowers, which are usually two or three, near each other, but not connected, consist of an axis with three short-curved styles, each invested by a calyx that adheres closely to it and becomes the husk or shell of the acorn. The whole, except the styles, is held in a cup formed of many small overlapping scales, which afterward lose their individuality and shrink into mere roughness on the outside of the cup that holds the acorn. For only one of the six ovules contained in the ovary develops into an acorn (seed or corn of the ac, or oak).

When Does Old Age Begin.

I mention age, of course, only in esteem of it. When a hearty man tells his years he is confessing not their burden, but only their dignity. Strictly, his soul's experiences, not the years, are his age; and as for the body, if we come to fine distinctions, we know well enough that it is only somewhere between 3 and 7 years old in the oldest of us. At 50 the soul has just moved into its eighth new body, which is its oldest, nevertheless. Our very substitutes for flesh and blood share the soul's honors. We would never say, for example, that Rear-Admiral Tourdes-Indes is 77 except his cork leg, which is scant 30, and his wig, which is only 9. His body, both natural and artificial, is just the age of his stout old soul. Nor when he has dropped anchor at last in the haven we spell with two e's, shall we think of his body as being any older than on the day the soul vacated it.

Puzzled.

"Are you the proprietor of this restaurant?" said the man who had waited for his order until he became sleepy. "Yes, sir. What can I do for you?" "You can give me some information. I want to know whether you have told the waiter to stay away so that you can bring in a bill for lodgings against me?"—Denver Times.

EFFECT ON FARO.

A Gambling House Dealer Tells Why He Closed Up.

A well-known gambler, who has for years been a "dealer" in a Baltimore faro bank, was lounging along the avenue yesterday, when the Star man met him.

"Hello, Dan," remarked the writer, "what are you doing over here?" "Just loafing," was the reply. "Our game's closed."

"Somebody win out your roll?" "Oh, no," responded the gambler smilingly. "The roll's all right, but we closed down all the same."

"The fact is," he continued seriously, "there's no money in Baltimore, or anywhere else, as far as I can learn. Three or four years ago our game was a rich one. Our expenses ran a hundred a day, year in and out. There was a steady play all the time and we got most of the money, and the players had considerable. Our customers when we closed a couple of weeks ago were virtually the same men we had when former conditions prevailed. You know, we never allowed any chip chasers or sleeper watchers around our house. Our players were mostly men in business and professional life who were stuck on playing faro, and they devoted a certain part of their incomes to it. I never knew but two or three of our regular players who went in deep enough to neglect their families. Well, these same men have been playing with us all the time, as I say, but where they used to play reds at $25 a stack they got to playing whites at $2 a stack. So we closed down. I tell you times are mightily depressed when a faro bank that's winning right along can't make the business pay."

INFLUENCE OF A SINGLE BOOK.

Thoroughly Studied, It Helped Through a Whole Career.

Of the influence of a single book thoroughly learned, a distinguished Maine judge gives evidence. A lawyer engaged in the trial of a case came into the room where the judges were chatting with friends and began to search among the law books. "What are you looking for?" queried the judge. "I'm hunting for a decision relating to a parol sale of grass," replied the attorney. "You'll find that in the Thirtieth Maine; Cutler against Pope," said the judge. "You seem to have that on your tongue's end," said the lawyer jokingly. "When I was a boy," said the judge, "I had one law book that was my own, and but one. That was a copy of the 'Thirtieth Maine Report.' I read that book over and over, until I almost had it by heart. And I have never seen the time since, in my practice and my work as a judge, when that book was not a solid foundation under my feet. Its cases seemed to spread out and fit, either directly or by analogy, into thousands of questions I have had to pass upon. I had it so thoroughly I could recall it when the doctrines of other books were not at all clear to me."—Lewiston Journal.

A Piece of Parchment.

When unwritten on, is not more colorless than the cadaverous countenances of those unfortunate persons whom we are accustomed to call "confirmed invalids." What a misnomer! implying, too, despair, a giving up for lost! As long as the living power of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can be felt, and that is possible so long as there is no absolute collapse of the faculties, fresh vitality can be infused into wasted, feeble frames; color and flesh can be brought back to wasted, pallid cheeks with this grand sheet anchor of the debilitated and the sickly. It is a tonic of the greatest potency and timed purity, and a remedy for and preventive of dyspepsia, biliousness, rheumatic nervous and kidney complaints. Appetite and sleep are greatly aided by it; it counteracts the effects of indigestion or excitement, and nullifies the often perilous consequences of exposure to inclement weather or damp clothing.
